

Elinor is perched up on the examining table, Ranger Rabbit is * on a chair with Olive and Ari beside her. DR. FOX enters - she's a friendly, competent person, wearing colorful, kid-friendly badges on her stethoscope and doctor's coat (as appropriate).

DR. FOX
Hey, Elinor I heard you hurt your arm.

ARI
She fell out of a tree, Dr. Fox.

OLIVE
While we were setting up our circus tent.

DR. FOX
A circus? How cool is that? I LOVE
a good circus. Well, don't you worry, Elinor, we're going to get you all fixed up. Can I have a look at your arm please?

Elinor shakes her head, and cuddles into her Mom. She's a little nervous.

DR. FOX (CONT'D)
Okay, then...How about your ear?

ELINOR
My ear? I didn't hurt my ear.

DR. FOX
Oh, no? Well it's always good to check just in case. Hmmm, what's this?

She pulls a lollipop from behind Elinor's ear.

ELINOR
<GASP!> A lollipop!

DR. FOX
An all natural fruit lollipop, of course.

She smiles at Ranger Rabbit.

OLIVE
How did a lollipop get behind
Elinor's ear?

DR. FOX
Just a little magic trick.

ARI
Magic! I didn't know doctors were magic!

DR. FOX
Doctors aren't magic, Ari.
Magician's are, though.

ELINOR
You're a MAGICIAN?

DR. FOX
Just for fun, doctoring is my real job.
(gentle, serious)
Do you mind if I have a look at your arm now, Elinor?

Elinor nods, she feels better and moves her arm towards Dr. Fox, who gently picks it up.

DR. FOX (CONT'D)
Does this hurt?

ELINOR
Ow, yes, a little.

DR. FOX
Sorry. Does this?

42 She manipulates Elinor's hand.

42

ELINOR
No.

DR. FOX
(gets serious)
Good. So Elinor, your arm is going to be fine, but it might have a very small fracture. That means the bone might be broken, but I won't know for sure until we take an Xray.

*